About the Webinar

Biodiversity forms the foundation of our ecosystems, ensuring balance and sustainability of life on Earth. However, it is now under unprecedented threat from human activities, climate change, pollution, and unsustainable development. This webinar aims to raise awareness, spark action, and foster collective responsibility to safeguard the Earth's precious biological wealth.

The session will feature discussions on the alarming rate of biodiversity loss, its implications, and what actions can be taken both globally and locally. The objective is to inspire participants—students, educators, researchers, and concerned citizens—to become active stewards of the environment.
